

Bistro Točkica

Retro bistro in Remiza serving nostalgic dishes

At the mere mention of the bistro Točkica (točkica meaning a small dot in English), people's faces light up. That says a lot about this place, which attracts its guests with its food, but also the atmosphere. This retro-style bistro with nostalgic dishes and interior design got its name after dots on enamel cookware, reminiscent of past lunches at grandparents'; dishes in Točkica are served in such cookware. And when filled with classics of Croatian gastronomy, it is no wonder that Točkica become such a popular place in short time.

Bistro Točkica accommodates its guests on 2 levels and on the terrace, where people sit even in winter, despite the low temperatures. The interior is designed in vintage style – the ground floor is in red tones that create a warm atmosphere, and the upper one is in pastel green. The chairs are retro and mismatched, and the tables have cloth pads reminiscent of crochet milieux, with a pattern of — you guessed it — dots.

The service is nice and very helpful, and the portions are huge.

What is served?

The menu includes seasonal dishes, daily dishes, fish Friday and the classic à la carte menu.

Bistro Točkica was conceived as a restaurant where traditional Croatian dishes and well-known dishes from the wider region will be cooked with a serious approach as from the best restaurants and as it was once prepared for, for example, bishops, lords, and counts.

Address:

Maceljaska ul. 21, 10000, Zagreb, Hrvatska

Web:

https://www.instagram.com/bistro_tockica/?img_index=1

<https://m.facebook.com/p/Bistro-To%C4%8Dkica-100090669068215/>